Tyson Foods: ibp Trusted Excellence

"Success is the sum of small efforts, repeated day in and day out."

My Ag Hero

With is being Beef Month, I wanted to highlight a company that most everyone has heard of, Tyson Foods. Most people associate Tyson Foods with chicken products but they are actually the largest fresh beef distributor in the United States.

The Tyson Beef Slaughterhouse in Springdale, Arkansas can harvest up to 28,700 head of beef daily. That is just one of the beef slaughtering facilities in the United States.

In 1967, Tyson Fresh Meats perfected an innovation that dramatically changed the fresh meat industry. They started boxed beef. Instead of shipping customers an entire carcass, they stated breaking down the carcass in smaller, more manageable portions. The cuts were then vacuum-packaged and shipped in boxes.

Now, a customer can order specific cuts of meat from the boxed beef program, ibp Trusted Excellence. Whether a customer wants a case of briskets or a case of short loins, ibp will package and ship the fresh meat directly to the customer.

A customer can even get as particular as choosing a specific grade of beef. For instance, if they wanted a case of prime rib rolls, ibp will prepare a case full of USDA Prime graded rib rolls and send that directly to the customer.

Congratulations!

It is time to give a big congratulations to a couple of individuals who put their whole hearts into serving not only in our counties and the Mid-Georgia Cattlemen's Association, but in the whole Georgia Cattlemen's Association.

At the Georgia Cattlemen's

Convention and Beef Expo in April, two remarkable individuals were presented with awards recognizing all the amazing things they do for the association, members, and community.

Also on Friday night at the Cattlemen's Ball, Mrs. Cynthia Douglas was awarded into the Georgia Cattlewomen's Hall of Fame. Her years of leadership, knowledge, and willingness to anything and everything for the association, made her the ideal person for this recognition.

Congratulation to both of you, and thank you for positively impacting so many lives in our community.
